

Tino Mkorombindo, MD/MBA Candidate

President | Greater Influence, Inc.

Tino Mkorombindo is an aspiring Orthopaedic Surgeon and is currently a 4th year MD/MBA dual degree candidate at the University of Louisville School of Medicine and College of Business. Mkorombindo is a 2017 graduate of Oakwood University, a Seventh-Day Adventist HBCU, where he graduated with a degree in Biology with honors.

Since his childhood in Harare, Zimbabwe, Mkorombindo has had a passion for improving his community. He recently founded a nonprofit organization, Greater Influence, that aims to increase representation in healthcare by improving access to resources. The organization works to address the declining numbers of minorities in medicine through providing access to health-care-related knowledge and opportunities. As a physician, Mkorombindo plans to continue his work as a clinical researcher, Health and Social Justice Scholar, motivational speaker, active mentor, and avid community leader.
