

VERONICA SANDOVAL, PHD, JD

Principal, Patient Inclusion and Health Equity | Genentech

Veronica Sandoval is a Principal in the Patient Inclusion and Health Equity team in the Chief Diversity Office at Genentech. Veronica's policy and medical background, along with the personal and professional intersection of her Latina and health equity efforts, bring a rich perspective to Genentech's ongoing work in health equity and inclusive research.

Veronica has over seven years' experience in medical affairs and has supported different therapeutic areas, including asthma, inflammatory bowel disease, women's health, autism spectrum disorder, and influenza. She also practiced as a litigation attorney focusing on complex patent litigation in the life sciences and pharmaceutical fields.

Veronica holds a B.A. in molecular and cell biology from the University of California, Berkeley, a Ph.D. in neuropharmacology from the University of Utah, a J.D. from Seattle University School of Law