

Meka Kpoh

Full spectrum doula, Founder of Black Birth Justice | Black Birth Justice

Meka is a full spectrum doula, midwifery student, a wife and a mother of four boys. Meka has been a birth worker since 2016 and has a passion for creating safe spaces for families during pregnancy, birth, and postpartum. She received her Bachelor of Communication from the University of Louisville and currently attends Southwest Tech for midwifery. Meka is the founder of Black Birth Justice, a nonprofit that aims to combat the alarming black maternal death rate, particularly in the postpartum phase.
